DEDICATION

Mr. Jack DeLorenzo is much more than a vice-principal; he is a dear friend. Through his consistent attendance at sports and social events, his presence at school, and his "leadership" at student council meetings, he has touched the lives of all.. Mr. "D" has worked for the last six years at completely molding his first graduating class. He has always shown his concern, from his words of "wisdom" following a chronic bout of senioritis to such personal remarks as, "Isn't that skirt a little tight?" Mr. "D" has proven to be one step ahead of us all.

This yearbook is dedicated to Mrs. Florence Ely because, as it was stated by one of her students, "She cares about everything." Whenever you walk into Mrs. Ely's classroom, you will find her helping somebody. She treats every student with patience, good humor, and respect. Without her guidance and the countless hours she has cheerfully contributed, the 1992 Tessahoc could not have been completed. Mrs. Ely exemplifies all the qualities of an excellent teacher and everything that is special about Cohasset High School.

WE, THE CLASS OF 1992, WOULD LIKE TO DEDICATE THE 1992 TESSAHOC YEARBOOK TO MRS. ELY AND MR. DELORENZO BECAUSE OF ALL THAT THEY HAVE DONE FOR US. WE WILL NEVER FORGET THEM.

CHRIS BARTOW

"If I were a swan, I'd be gone.
If I were a train, I'd be late.
And if I were a good man, I'd talk to you more often than I do.
If I were asleep, I could dream.
If I were afraid I could hide.
And if I go insane, please don't put your wires in my brain.
If I were the moon, I'd be good.
If I were a rule I would bend.
And if I were a good man,
I'd understand the spaces between friends.
If I were alone I would cry.
And if I were with you I'd be warm and dry.
And if I go insane will you still let me join with the game."
- Pink Floyd

Good luck everyone, Thanks.

First off — let's take it from the start
Straight out — can't change what's in my heart
No one — can tear my beliefs apart, you can't bring me . . .
You ain't — never seen no one like me
Prevail — regardless of what the cost might be
Power — flows inside of me, you can't bring me . . .
Never — fail as long as I try
Refuse — to be a part of your lie
Even — if it means I die, you can't bring me . . .
You can't bring me down!

Time out — let's get something clear
I speak — more truth than you want to hear
Scapegoat — to cover up your fear, you can't bring me . . .
You ain't — never seen so much might
Fight for — what I know is right
What for — you got yourself a fight, you can't bring me . . .
Stand up — we'll all sing along
Together — ain't nothing as strong
Won't quit — we ain't in the wrong, you can't bring me . . .

You can't bring me down! — Suicidal

What's new with the Cohasset Drama Club?

To be, or not to be That is the question." This question can be easily answered if you witness the inspiring, dramatic tragedy, And Flights of Angels. Written by Terrence Ortwein, this adaption of William Shakespeare's Hamlet contains a dynamic all-female cast ranging from young eight-graders to experienced seniors. The starring role of Hamlet was given to a well deserved junior, Erin McAllister, while Katie O'Sullivan received the part of Horatio, Hamlet's good friend and narrator of the play Additional juniors in this tragedy are Meredith Hansen, Kerri Richards Souffrain, Tracy Hyde and Jill Day Voted the "Most Dramatic" by the senior class, Ali Welz accepted the role of Claudius, Hamlet's former uncle and present step-father Other seniors involved in this January production are Rebecca Kirk(Laertes), Nicole Bieryla(Gertrude, the Queen), Erin Lennon(Guildenstern, messenger of the king), Cecilia Candia(Prologue) and Carole Smith as the hypocritical kiss-up, Polonius Freshmen Jemila Afshar, Amy Silvia and Mary Ellen Rayment also received parts in this Drama Club production as well as eight-graders Alison Ritts, Caitlin Connelly and Holly Russell. Ali received a leading role as Hamlet's girlfriend, Ophelia. With this talented cast, And Flights of Angels is a definite success. Make sure you don't miss it!

JOURNAL OF A POWDERPUFFER
Day one

"This, ladies, is a football", patiently explained Coach Leary. When Coach Franey silently nodded in agreement, I knew we were off to a good start. In addition, nobody asked what we were to do with it. We all looked at the ball with the highest reverence and eagerly awaited the moment when we, too, would be able to hold it. Inevitably, the moment arrived and it was spectacular. A few dozen bold young women ventured onto the field, ready for anything. Having distributed the balls, the coaches sat back in order to assess the situation.

Truthfully, the majority of my classmates appeared aptly skilled in the art of playing football. I sat back for an instant, impressed. However, from off in the distance, a wail of utter mortification penetrated the eardrums of all those present. "I broke a nail!" it cried. Nobody paid much attention; we just wanted to play some ball. Let me stop here and address the fact of women playing football. Is it not a man's sport? Do we have the right to hold the sacred, immitation pigskin ball? Could we compare what we called "football" to what football really was? I answer all of these questions with one statement: we weren't the Patriots and we didn't intend to be. Flutie wasn't in sight, we couldn't tackle, and we weren't paid a hefty salary to play the sport. The differences began there and ended at about the fifty yard line.

THE SCHOOL STORE

We now have a new addition to our school, the school store. The Store has been set up by the CHS student council to provide students with all they need to survive the day. The Store has it all: candy bars, gum, pizza, popcorn, pens, pencils, notebooks, envelopes, hats, shirts, mugs, and sodas. If you do find something they do not have, there is an order center so you can request it. The School Store is open before homeroom, during both lunches, and after school. Come in and visit it today!

This is a Test, this is only a test...

1. You're walking down the hallway and you spot an unidentifiable object. It is

a. the substitute teacher

b. SOMETHING from the lockerroom

c. you still don't know, nor do you care to find out

2. Say it's lunchtime. Unfortunately you forgot to brownbag it, so you're faced with SCHOOL LUNCH. You can have

a. a grayish brown patty smothered in cream sauce

b. a taco with no meat, sauce, lettuce, or tomato--in short, a shell

c. a Big Mac, fries, and a Coke (yeah, don't ya wish)

3. It's fourth period and you didn't eat your Wheaties this morning. Your stomach has a comment for every statement the teacher makes. You

a. look at the person behind you with disgust

b. try to cough, wheeze, or make any of a variety of noises that may cover up the growling

c. maintain your poise and ignore it like everyone else is doing

4. You get called down to the Main Office. It's because

a. you decided to have a picnic instead of going to history

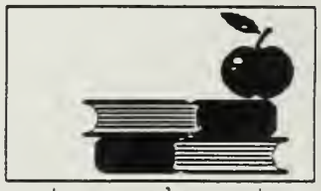
b. you took the vice-principal's car for a short drive

c. you violated each and every rule in the Students' Guide to Proper Discipline

Forgetting freedom?

With the crisis in the Persian Gulf, many people don't acknowledge the newly-found freedom in nearly all of the countries of Eastern Europe: not just the Berlin Wall falling and the reunification of Germany, but the free elections and the end of communism in countries such as Poland and Czechoslovakia. These countries are no longer under Soviet control. The "Iron Curtain" has been lifted.

Walesa's new presidency has caused mixed feelings. Some feel that he has no political experience, so he should not rule. Others think that he knows what the public wants, so he should have a chance to lead Poland. Regardless of whether or not Walesa himself succeeds, the important thing is that Poland, and the rest of Eastern Europe, is now free to rule themselves as they wish. With the turmoil in other parts of the world, it is easy to overlook the reforms taking place in Europe today, and we should not.



An apple a day keeps the administration away.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

February is Black History Month! Throughout the United States, people celebrate the accomplishments of scientists, teachers, inventors, and other professional blacks. Only one month (the shortest month) of recognition for over four centuries of achievements. Is this really enough time to showcase the contributions of the African-Americans? In the 28/29 days, are all of the contributing black Americans acknowledged?

The answer to both of these questions is "NO!" Hundreds of black achievers remain unknown because in the short time slot alotted for black history education, teachers feel that they must teach about the famous names: Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Harriet Tubman, Fredrick Douglass, etc. Due to the pressure to inform students before the 28 days are up, only the most prominent black Americans are recognized.

For example, do you know who Garrett A. Morgan is? I didn't think so. He was an inventor who made two of the most important modern conventions. The traffic light and gas mask were both the ingenious creation of this black man. Without the aide of another black man, you would only be able to read this article by sunlight. Lewis H. Latimer helped Edison in his invention of the light bulb, but you've probably never heard his name either.

Black history recognition was originally only given a week, so clearly it has come a long way. But just as that week evolved into a month, the month must somehow evolve into a year. All year long students should be taught about the achievements of black Americans just as they are taught that Colombus discovered America and George Washington was the first president of the United States As Mrs. Patricia Brown, the Cohasset METCO coordinator, stated, black history education "should be infiltrated through English, Social Studies, Science and all the other subjects. It seems as if society is trying to cram all of our achievements into one short period."

Upon proposing that black accomplishments should be recognized throughout the year, I am not saying that Black History Month should immediately be eliminated. For now it is the only hope students have for learning about the other part of history. Ultimately, though, we should be working toward a combination of the two differnt histories (black and white) so that courageous soldiers such as Sgt. William Carney, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his bravery in the Civil War, can be acknowledged in the country he jeopardized his life for!

The Health Craze

One can't escape the health craze. It's everywhere: on videocassettes, in health spa commercials, in magazine advertisements, at the workplace, in school, and at home. Everywhere one looks, it seems, there is a reminder that You Can Be In Better Shape. Or someone offers the advice, "Say no to drugs." Or a carton of nonfat milk sits beside a granola bar, making one wonder, "What happened to the milk and cookies?"

What happened? Throughout the 80's, Americans have become more and more health-conscious, until, seemingly, the pursuit of happiness has been replaced with the pursuit of non-fried foods, Richard Simmons and Jane Fonda, drug consellors and every lose-weight- quick program imaginable. Once limited to people who refused to eat anything that used to walk, the health craze has now touched almost everyone in one way or another.

RELEASE DAY BLUES

Up until a few years ago, release days were a joyous occasion. Students happily skipped two periods and enjoyed a hearty meal in the school cafeteria. At that time, however, a new idea hit the school, forcing everyone to have all seven periods with no lunch. There are several reasons why this format is still followed: it gives all the teachers an opportunity to see their pupils; the lunch room doesn't have to make as many lunches, and homework can be assigned to everyone. Many students, however, do not like the change. It's understandable that teachers like the thirty minute classes because it allows work to be continued from Wednesday to Friday, and on this point it is hard to argue against them. The exclusion of lunch from the school day, however, is unnecessary. The administration allows students to eat lunch if they have a study late in the day, but, to those without such a study it is unavailable. The solution to this would be to have a lunch after all periods, by grade. This would shorten the periods but fill our hungry stomach s.

Many people have looked upon the current Persian Gulf Crisis with great skepticism. The nation seems to be divided, some people urging further U.S. military action, and others condemning the government for actions already taken. The sending of some 300,000 troops in August because of Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait arouses several questions. What were the members of the United States government thinking when they sent troops to the Gulf? Surely, they couldnt have thought that the presence of foreign troops in Hussein's backyard would provoke complaisance on Hussein's part! Consider also, the main objective for sending American troops to the Gulf. Was it to liberate Kuwait, or was it to guarantee an ample supply of petroleum in future years?

In the beginning, some people may have argued that the United States government overstepped its bounds by involving itself in the Gulf crisis. However, with Iraq's recent bombings of Israel and its attempts to bomb Saudi Arabia, it becomes clear that Saddam Hussein's power must be reduced, if not destroyed. The people of Israel simply cannot go on wondering if they will be bombed or not. Another reason for further U.S. military action would be Hussein's inexcusable dumping of millions of barrels of oil into the waters of the Gulf. Although Hussein dumped the oil to prevent the landing of American ships on shore, his disregard for wildlife and the world ecology, creates an onimous question. If Hussein can destroy nature with no compunction, what will his military policies toward the United States be like in an all-out war?

PAINT MURALS

A group of 17 art students from Cohasset High School have undertaken a unique project. They have returned to their old elementary school, the Deer Hill School, and designed and painted murals in the hallways. The students involved are Alix Ash, Abbie Barrett, Jack Beddows, Cecilia Candia, Claudia Candia, Sara Corbett, Corey DeSantis, Crispian Flood, J. Gaston, Val Gill, Alyson James, Jon Maciel, Art Meachum, Gregg Nourie, Jake Powell, Carrie Ripley, and Rachel Snow.

This project was inspired by Deer Hill principal Ken Ekberg, who proposed that a group of high school artists help to "spruce up" the school. This modest proposal has blossomed into a marvelous learning experience for the high schoolers and for the elementary students as well.

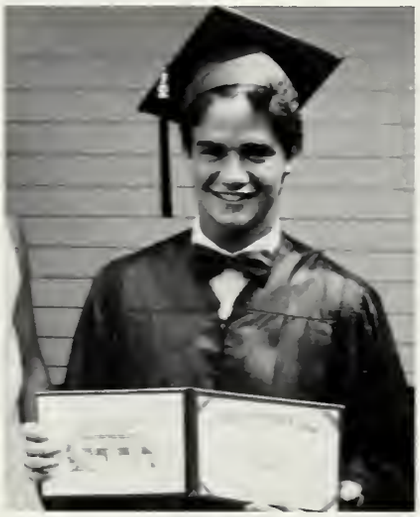
Across the time zones. . .

It's surprising that American schools are very important places for all the townspeople and that teachers are involved in so many fun activities. Also, unlike Italy, there is so much space here.



I feel that I improved my English; however, I have missed the closeness and humor of old friends. Someday I hope to come back and see more of the U.S. especially the cities. — Luca Pagano Leonetti, Torino(Turin), Italy

"Today is today, with the weight of all the past time, with the wings of all that will be tomorrow. All I have lived here will remain alive. All I have enjoyed and loved will remain for always inside."

Thanks to all of you, my wonderful family and my dear friends, for making my stay so happy. With gratitude and love -Carlos Salas Lind, Iquique, Chile
